Feature Mock-up: Tournament Viewing Page

Each tournament would have; its own page for viewing its details and information; offering the means to sign-up to it for registered users who are in a team for the game the tournament is about; and viewing the tournament's live status (who is playing who, what past scores have been, etc).

The below page:

The mock-up features a blue header with the 'ROCKET LEAGUE ESPORTS' logo. Below the header, the page title is 'A VERY COOL ROCKET LEAGUE TOURNAMENT' with a green 'SIGN UP' button. On the left, a sidebar contains tournament details: a clock icon for '2nd January 2050, 13:30 UTC', a location pin for 'Great Sports Arena, Birmingham', and a pound icon for '£50,000'. Below this is a 'Participants:' section with a list of eight participants, each with a radio button. The main content area includes a paragraph of Lorem Ipsum text. Below the text is a 'TOURNAMENT STATUS' section showing a bracketed tournament tree. The tree starts with eight participants at the top, grouped into four pairs. Each pair has a score: '3/0' for the first pair, '1/2' for the second, '1/2' for the third, and '0/3' for the fourth. The first two pairs are connected to a single box labeled 'Participant 1' with a score of '2/1'. The next two pairs are connected to another box. These two boxes are then connected to a final box at the bottom.

Contains all the necessary details for someone to use to sign up to it. The page is fictionally in the context of a Rocket League tournament to better show what it might look like.

As prerequisites, users must already be in a team for that game, in order to sign up, and only the Team Leader would be able to be the one to sign up.

This means that once a team leader has found a tournament they'd like to participate in, signing up is quite literally 1 click, aligning with the user persona of a team leader, below...

User Persona: Team Leader

Kyle Rodriguez

Professional Rocket League
Player and Team Leader

Age: 21	Country: USA
Sex: Male	Education: Undergraduate
Income Level: $50k (tournaments)	Occupation: College Student

"I just want to play what I love and keep getting better at it."

PSYCHOGRAPHICS

Takes the game very seriously.
Disciplined in training regime.
Open-minded to new ideas and solutions.

Likes experimenting with tactics.

Motivated by playing at the world stage, live, in S-Tier tournaments.

Struggles to find tournaments in consistent time-frames.

GOALS

- Training as much and as often as possible.
- Going to as many tournaments in all tiers to get positive rankings, as possible.
- Getting into an S-Tier tournament.

PERSONALITY

SCENARIO

"In order to get better as a team, we must play together as a team as much as possible. Training against other teams trying to do the same is often the best way to do that. Every week, I look for local, regional or national tournaments for us to play at and spend a long time looking through various tournament websites to find the collection I need. It takes away some of my valuable time, and ideally I'd hope to one-day use a website that shows all tournaments happening in all places. I like signups that are quick, easy and streamlined."
