The team-view page will provide three main functionality to users:

- Provide team details for all users
- Join/leave team for players
- Manage team for team leader
  The page compartmentalises the interface by grouping independent details into separate tabs, such as members and match history.
  When the user navigates to the page a resolver is used to fetch team data to render the page. Then, only relevant interfaces are rendered to the user. For example, the join button will turn into a leave button if the user is already a member. A player can request to join a private team which uses the API to store an applicant entity with their id on the database.
  The team leader can then review applicants' player card and decide to approve or reject them.
